

Recognizing the Human in Hospitalist

shm[®]
Society of Hospital Medicine

“Hospitalists are healthcare disruptors, making big changes that are significantly defining the way healthcare is delivered through being innovative.

Hospitalists are developing new models of care and leveraging technology to creatively provide person-centered care to patients who are medically and socially complex, using the power of storytelling and social media to explore the human side of medicine, advocating to address structural racism and remove unnecessary barriers to healthcare, reaching out to all corners of the globe—rural and international—to ensure access to care. As president, I am committed to supporting you as individuals, and collectively as members, so that we can work to push the boundaries in care delivery both within and beyond our borders.”

- Flora Kisuule, MD, MPH, SFHM
SHM Board President
